FIFTY YEARS CONTRIBUTING TO THE SOCIO-ENVIRONMENTAL TRANSFORMATION OF BRAZIL

With a network made up of volunteers, partners, similar entities, institutions, and civil society organizations, we have completed 50 years increasingly engaged in our mission to promote the prosperity of communities, strengthening safe, sustainable, and accessible food systems.

Over five decades, we have built a solid history of promoting positive social and environmental results, supporting impact initiatives and businesses through national and regional calls, the Food in Focus Award, and the direct action of our volunteers.

Inclusion, equity, and innovation are also part of the essence of our work, and this publication brings details and beautiful photographic records of this inspiring story, built by people and for people. Stories of transformation fill us with pride and strengthen the actions of the Foundation, which is an important arm of Cargill's social action.

The engagement of volunteers, the relationship with strategic partners, and the genuine commitment of our sponsor Cargill are some of the factors that have contributed to the success of the actions we have carried out along this trajectory and that will remain a legacy for society.

But for us, 50 years is only part of the way. We look to the future, always respecting the past. We want to continue to be that bridge between the demands of communities and the availability of people and organizations to work for an egalitarian society. Here's to another 50 years!

Cargill Foundation Governance

ESSENCE

The world has changed a lot in this time and, from now on, the Foundation will act in a more strategic, collaborative way and with a focus on generating value for society. This will be the new way of acting, even more proactive and connected with the UN Sustainable Development Goals, but without losing our essence. We have not ceased to be and will not cease to be the Cargill Foundation built in these 50 years. Here's to 50, 100, 150 years of stories."

Flávia Tayama, director of Corporate Responsibility at Cargill Latin America and Chief Executive Officer of the Cargill Foundation

LEGACY

"Through its pillars of action, the Foundation promotes a positive social and environmental impact in the communities where the company operates and reinforces Cargill's purpose of nourishing the world in a safe, responsible, and sustainable manner. Increasingly, the Foundation has promoted structuring and strategic initiatives, seeking the transformation of the communities where it operates, leaving a valuable legacy to the people who benefit."

Paulo Sousa, president of the Cargill Brasil

Generate Alternatives Project (Curitiba/PR)

ECOMMITMENT

The Foundation is the vehicle of Cargill's social responsibility. And we can only work with social responsibility if leaders are engaged in this cause. We even had 15% of all the company's employees acting as volunteers – which is 1,500 people. You can't achieve this result without the commitment of the top."

Solange Ferreira, former director of the Cargill Foundation

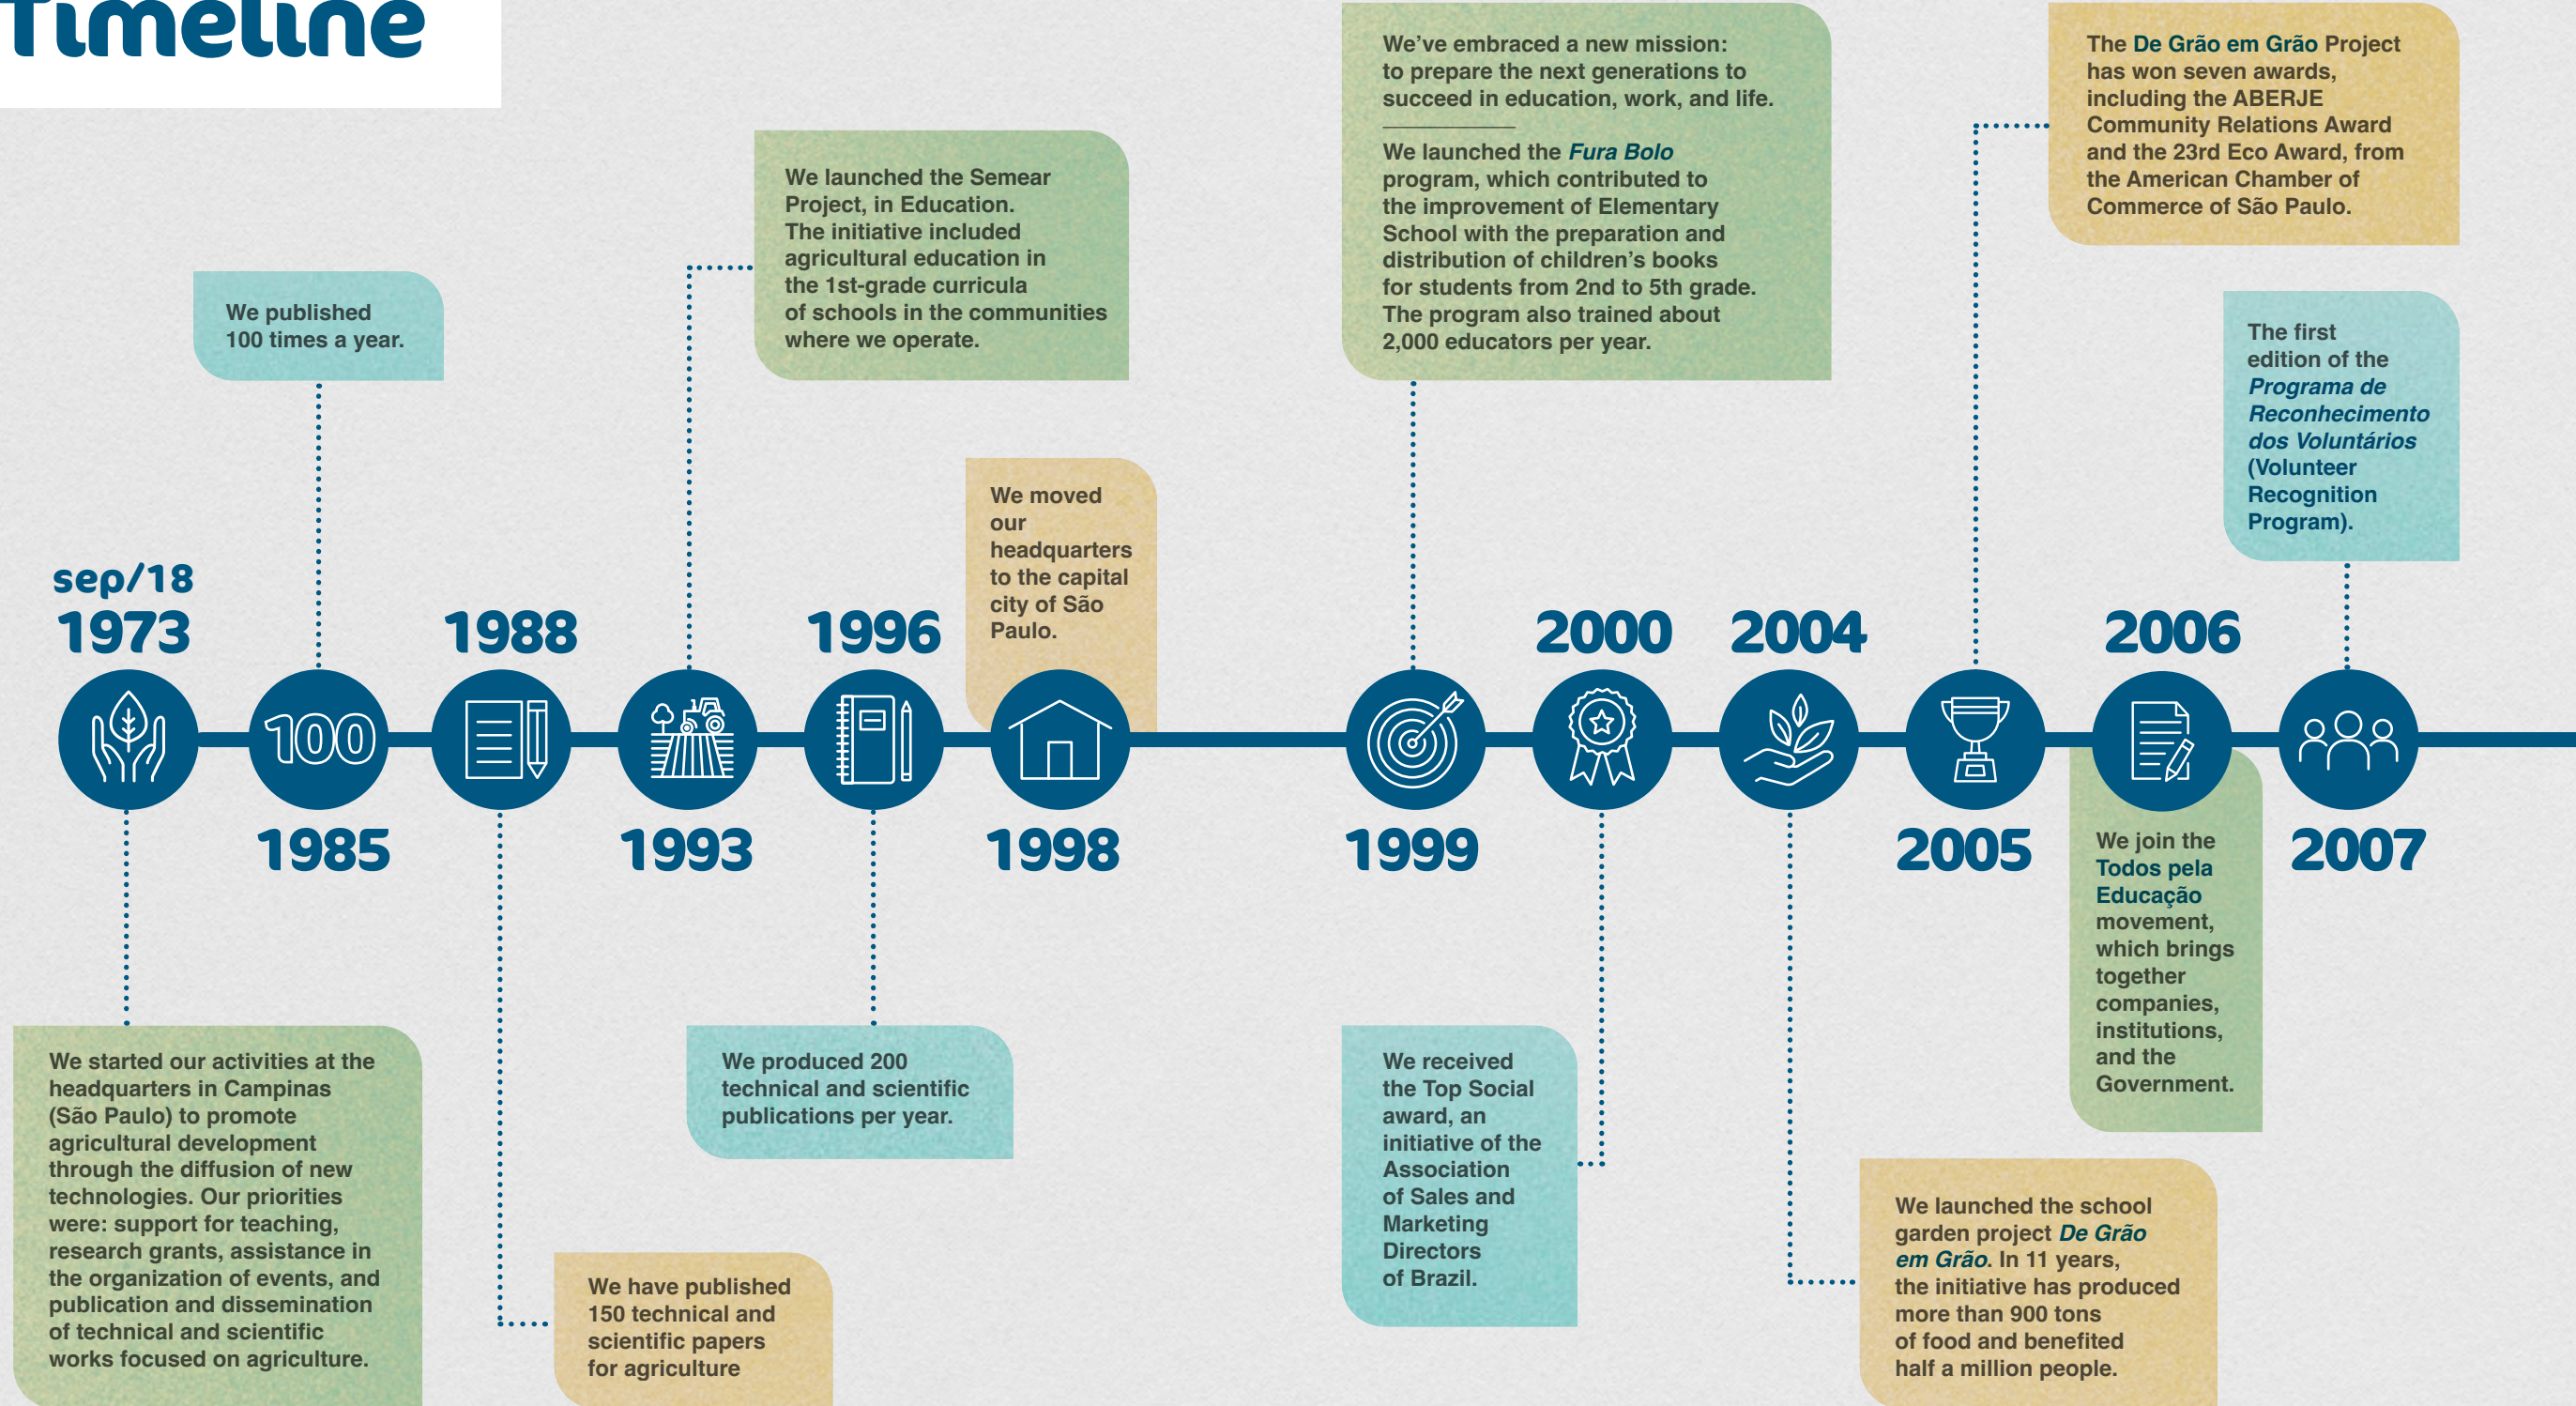

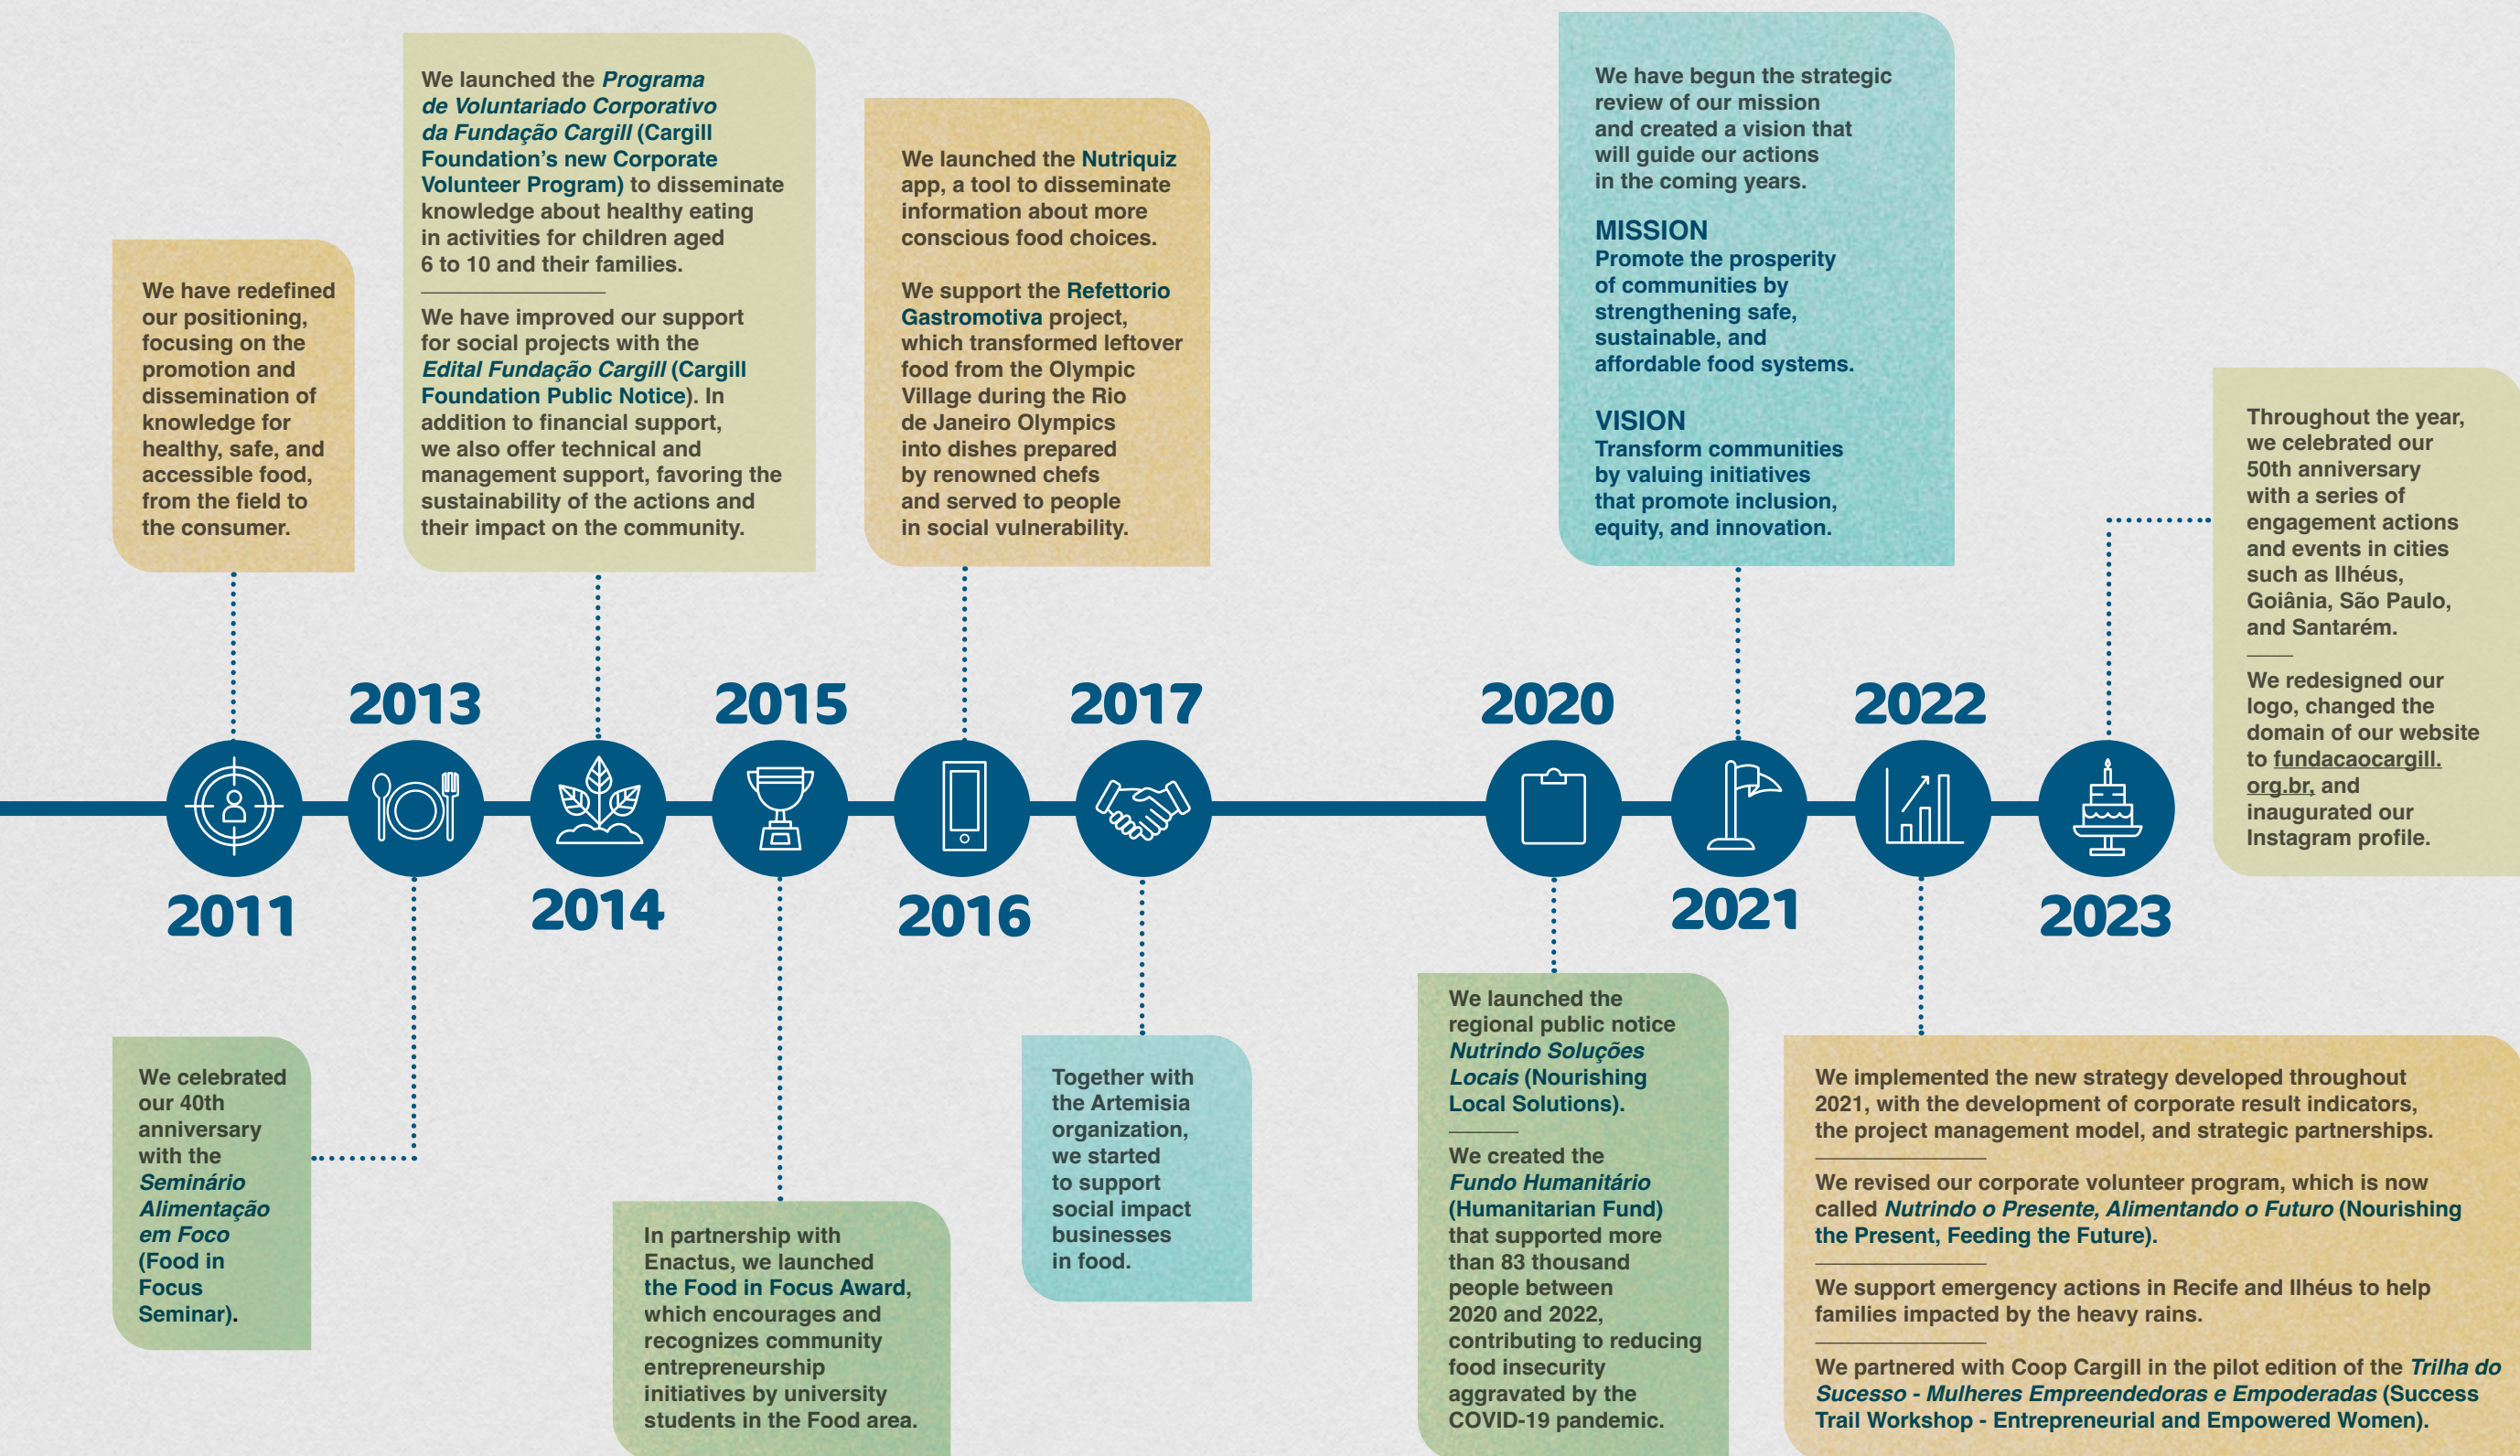

VALUE

Stimulating entrepreneurship in the food value chain seems to me to be our main contribution to past and future generations. It is through supporting social impact business entrepreneurs that we disseminate food education, strengthen family farming, fight food waste, and transform the lives of people in communities."

Andrea Anjos, Director of the Tax Department at Cargill South America and Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Cargill Foundation

Timeline

The pillars that guide our actions

EDUCATION

Strengthen grassroots organizations and socio-environmental programs through knowledge sharing and volunteering.

STRATEGIC PARTNERSHIPS

Creation and maintenance of a relationship network with the external public to establish partnerships that can leverage projects with a positive national impact.

MANAGEMENT PROCESSES

Improvement of all our management processes and implementation of result indicators to monitor the impacts of the initiatives we support.

INSTITUTIONAL STRENGTHENING

Focus on the analysis and review of the Foundation's programmatic lines. In line with this pillar, we have improved our two annual calls:

Semeia: based on the experience of eight previous national notices, the strategic repositioning process brought some improvements in this call, with emphasis on the following points:

- Creation of two categories: Social and Environmental Projects and Impact Businesses.
- Adjustments in eligible institutions: Civil Society Organizations, Cooperatives, and Companies – only in the Impact Business Category.
- Limitation of project execution time to 12 months.
- Amount of the contribution per initiative.
- Axes/Themes considered in the award.
- Expansion of the implementation territories from 162 to 310 municipalities operated by Cargill, listed in the regulation.

Nurturing local solutions:

the improvements made aimed to resume the initial intention of this call, to act as a vector for promoting the institutional development of civil society organizations and providing access to resources and learning opportunities. The selection process is now aimed at valuing social initiatives led by people with disabilities, blacks, indigenous peoples, women, LGBTI+, and traditional peoples and communities to promote diversity in the Foundation's portfolio.

Alimentação em Foco (Food in Focus) Award: supporting innovation today to train tomorrow's leaders

Supporting the innovation and creativity of today's young people is a way to train leaders who will transmit to future generations the values that we at the Cargill Foundation stand for. Created in 2015, the Food in Focus Award is our main tool in this regard.

Through a partnership with Enactus Brasil, we annually select about 14 projects designed by university students from different parts of the country and focused on community socio-environmental entrepreneurship. The chosen initiatives receive mentoring from Cargill executives and financial support to put the projects into practice. With the implementation of these actions, approximately 15 thousand people are benefited.

The Food in Focus Award seeks initiatives in the areas of family farming, combating food waste, food education, and entrepreneurship in the food value chain. It is also an action with which we place hope in the future, encouraging young people to be actors in the transformation of communities and to continue in this purpose throughout their careers.

Enactus Meeting

What is Enactus?

It is an international non-profit organization present in 33 countries. The Enactus program seeks to unite students, executive leaders, and academic leaders in a network for the development of entrepreneurial initiatives with a social, economic, and environmental bias.

Uai Café Project
(Lavras/MG)

The main objective of the Uai Café project is to connect the small producer to the end consumer through a specialty coffee brand, adding value to the product and democratizing sales. It was an immense joy to be among those selected for Alimentação em Foco 2022, as we knew that it was the beginning of great knowledge for the project and the team. The award helps to impact the world through social projects that are thirsty to change lives. It's an incentive for the evolution of a better world!"

Renata Aguiar Figueiredo, Enactus UFLA Team - Universidade Federal de Lavras / "Uai Café" Project

The Cargill Foundation is not just contributing financially. We also ensure that the projects we support and the different entities we partner with hone their skills to make a high impact. The Foundation's work is based on a long-term partnership, and we love seeing the growth and advancement our programs bring to communities."

Sandra Muñoz, director of Capital Markets for Cargill Latin America and member of the Foundation's Executive Board

Uai Café Project
(Lavras/MG)

This partnership is based on Enactus and the Cargill Foundation common belief in building a better and more sustainable world using the energy, creativity, and skills of young university students. Together with them, we want to create favorable conditions for the development of safe, sustainable, and affordable food – and we need to invest in innovation. We believe that these young people will be better prepared and have more tools and instruments to face the complex problems of our society today and in the future.”

Joana Rudiger,
president of Enactus Brazil

Enactus Meeting

Enactus Meeting

The Cargill Foundation has been a partner of Enactus Brazil for 9 years, and I have been participating in this moment for three years. Every year I am more impressed and excited about the projects presented. Supporting Enactus projects is an important means of promoting the prosperity of communities by strengthening safe, sustainable, and affordable food systems. Thus, we are dedicated to enhancing initiatives that seek solutions to the socio-environmental challenges of the regions where we operate, generating a positive impact.”

Flávia Tayama, director of Corporate Responsibility at Cargill Latin America and Director of the Cargill Foundation

Through the reformulation of strategic partnerships in recent years, we have reaffirmed our commitment to Enactus, as well as invested in the strengthening and growth of Food in Focus. An award that values innovation, the development of the future generation of talents, and brings a profound change in regions of relevant social vulnerability.”

Raphael Dias, former director of the Cargill Foundation

From the Land to the Plate Project (Campinas/SP)

Mobilization, creativity, and stimulation of innovative initiatives through the projects we support

To amplify the positive social and environmental impact of our operations, we hold two annual calls to select the initiatives that we will support in the development of your projects:

Semeia Cargill Foundation: nationwide, selects up to 15 initiatives, including socio-environmental projects or impact businesses, carried out by cooperatives or civil society organizations in cities where Cargill is present. To participate, the project must be related to one of these themes: food and quality of life, professional and entrepreneurial qualification, local development, or research and innovation

Nurturing Local Solutions: targeted at initiatives in specific regions, selected based on the UN Hunger Map. It seeks to strengthen civil society organizations and prioritizes projects from institutions led by people with disabilities, black people, indigenous people, women, LGBTI+, and traditional peoples and communities.

Through these calls, we seek to identify and encourage the development of initiatives aligned with strengthening safe, sustainable, and accessible food systems.

We value projects that are intended to solve a social or environmental issue and can also address topics such as inclusion, diversity, human rights – or any other that directly contributes to the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). Among these, it is worth mentioning zero hunger and sustainable agriculture, reduction of inequalities, and responsible consumption and production.

In this way, we seek to allocate our resources to projects directly related to the transformations that the communities where Cargill operates need.

Generate Alternatives

I see a very big advance over time, we have gained maturity, scale, and more clarity of the projects that we must promote correctly, with effective results. The training took place on this side as well, and that is very positive.”

Laerte Moraes, managing director of Food Solutions at Cargill in South America and member of the Foundation’s Board of Trustees

I consider that one of the greatest achievements of the Foundation’s work to date is to continue for so long fulfilling its main mission of promoting development in education and agriculture, alongside Cargill, with the communities.”

Get to know some of the projects supported by the Cargill Foundation:

PROJETO
GASTRONOMIA
(GASTRONOMY OF TOMORROW PROJECT)

It teaches ways of entrepreneurship in the gastronomic field and the practice of professional cooking. It conducts courses and workshops on the outskirts of Belém, Pará, which train people in situations of economic and social fragility to work professionally in local gastronomy.

We have been in the gastronomy area for a few years now. Participating in the project added much more knowledge and reaffirmed how it is possible to use and value the inputs belonging to our food culture, such as nuts, chicory, and tapioca flour. And how it is possible to make them even tastier and, why not say, valued."

Nazaré Reis and Rosiane Batista - As Negonas,
Gastronomy of Tomorrow Project beneficiaries (Belém/PA)

Gastronomy of Tomorrow
Project (Belém/PA)

I've always been interested in learning more about gastronomy and, currently, I've been able to enhance my menu with one of the dishes I learned to make in the project. Sometimes, we just need an incentive to take the first step towards making our dreams come true, and the Gastronomy of Tomorrow project can contribute greatly, as it brings the opportunity for extra income for the students who participate in the project.”

Analú Leão Barros, Gastronomy of Tomorrow Project beneficiary (Belém/PA)

Gastronomy of Tomorrow Project (Belém/PA)

Gastronomy of Tomorrow Project (Belém/PA)

Projects such as Gastronomy of Tomorrow, which add to the lives of people who are looking for innovation, improvements, and direction, are a valid action for the qualification process. We always need more updates and initiatives like these, which we experience in class, bringing other perspectives to people, who don't even know where to start, to see their path positively.”

Aline Leão, Gastronomy of Tomorrow Project beneficiary (Belém/PA)

PROJETO GERAR ALTERNATIVAS (GENERATE ALTERNATIVES PROJECT)

It promotes the social and professional qualification of people on probation, who work in the processing of products donated to the Ceasa-Paraná Food Bank.

Generate Alternatives
Project (Curitiba/PR)

The project gave me an opportunity that many places are keen to take. From where I come from, many people have never worked with a formal contract in their lives. Here, at the Food Bank, with the opportunity of the Alternatives project, we discovered a craft that we often would not be able to discover abroad. I know what it's like to bring a resume and wait, and no one cares because of prejudice about the past. This project breaks down a giant barrier dealing with resocialization and, at the same time, makes us participate in actions to combat hunger and waste – it makes a difference in our lives and in the lives of the people who receive the donations.”

Francesco Belinelli,
Generate Alternatives
Project beneficiary

With the support of the Cargill Foundation call for proposals, it was possible to offer 51 participants professional courses in food handling and entrepreneurship, providing new perspectives for social reintegration and a new beginning through work activities that do not specifically depend on formal employment relationships. After the completion of the project, we received reports of participants who are entrepreneurs and others who have gained formal employment. Due to their acquired knowledge, they are reintegrating into society.”

Dayane Feitosa, social assistance of the Generate Alternatives Project

Generate Alternatives Project (Curitiba/PR)

Composta Ilhéus Project
(Ilhéus/BA)

PROJETO COMPOSTA ILHÉUS (COMPOSTA ILHÉUS PROJECT)

It promotes actions to introduce and develop composting in 15 schools 100 restaurants and snack bars in the city of Ilhéus, in the south of Bahia. The objective is to reduce the disposal of organic compounds and promote the cultivation of school gardens, which will be maintained from the compost produced by the composters.

Before, we carried out specific actions in schools and distributed worms to some interested parties. But with the Cargill Foundation edict, the scale of composting has taken on exponential proportions. Today, we have two agronomists taking care of 300,000 earthworms and promoting urban agriculture in the largest decentralized sanitation action in Bahia, with permanent technical assistance and free distribution of jumbo-sized composters.”

Responsible for the
Composta Ilhéus Project

(Ilhéus/BA)

PROJETO LIGA SOLIDÁRIA (SOLIDARITY LEAGUE PROJECT)

The project has a Composting Center – EcoLiga, which was renovated to expand the production of organic compost. The accessibility conditions of the center were also expanded, with greater potential for pedagogical activities and guided tours.

The partnership with the Cargill Foundation to promote EcoLiga was and is fundamental for the enhancement of this pedagogical project, focused mainly on children, after all, they are our future and need to grow up with these principles of inclusion, diversity, and sustainability. I thank you on behalf of all 24,000 Solidarity League members for this great partnership with the Cargill Foundation, which I hope will continue for many years to come.”

Rosalu Queiroz, Volunteer President of Solidarity League Project

Many projects have helped to transform realities in places with a great lack of resources and knowledge. Certainly, the Foundation has left a legacy in several projects and has transformed the lives of a large number of people, both those who have benefited from the programs and projects, as well as the volunteers who have been able to contribute to turning various ideas into reality.”

PROJETO PERIFERIA ARTICULADA (ARTICULATED PERIPHERY PROJECT)

Carried out by the organization Projeto Arrastão, this initiative operates in the southern region of Greater São Paulo in the development of entrepreneurial skills of young people and adults.

The Cargill Foundation is an important player in generating a positive social and environmental impact in the peripheries, in the countryside, and in universities. It creates partnerships with various urban and rural sectors so that the culture of sustainability is strengthened.”

Henrique Heder, Project and Partnership Advisor at Projeto Arrastão organization

PROJETO CASA FAMILIAR RURAL

TANCREDO NEVES
(TANCREDO NEVES

Promote the training of young people from 14 to 18 years old in communities in the municipalities of the Southern Bahia Lowlands to encourage them to remain in the countryside and family farming, with quality of life, strengthening sustainable production processes.

Tancredo Neves Rural Family House Project
(Tancredo Neves/BA)

Partnerships like the one with the Cargill Foundation allow our project and other projects to contribute to the social transformation of rural youth, our focus of action, their families and communities, as they recognize the importance of social work developed through education contextualized to the rural environment, strengthen the supported initiatives and enhance actions that aim to face social challenges and promote permanence in the countryside with quality of life.”

PROJETO RAÍZES NA COZINHA (KITCHEN ROOTS PROJECT)

An initiative of the organization Migraflíx, the project promotes the socioeconomic integration of refugees and immigrants through microgastronomy enterprises. There are about 300 beneficiaries, who undergo entrepreneurial training and a host community, to support them in the commercialization of services for small and medium-sized companies, in addition to integrating green economy solutions into their businesses.

Kitchen Roots Project (São Paulo/SP)

Investing financially and institutionally in the organization allows us to validate and scale our work, which transforms the lives of immigrants and refugees daily, with a focus on women, enabling them to generate income in a recurring and sustainable way, which impacts directly into your onboarding process.”

Kayla Sarkisian, Communications Analyst at Migraflif

I'm Iranian and I arrived in Brazil in 2019. I started participating in Migralab in March 2023 with my daughter. I'm an immigrant, I'm a woman, and I'm 64 years old. And I know that not every place would open a door for me to empower myself and work with what I love to do. The program transformed my life by giving me a unique opportunity so I could work here in Brazil, even though I don't know how to speak the language, only with the help of my daughter, who cooks with me and knows how to speak Portuguese. Today I feel part of a community and I still earn money to start my life over in a new place.”

Zara Bigdeli, Kitchen Roots Project beneficiary

Kitchen Roots Project
(São Paulo/SP)

PROJETO NUTRIR PLANTAS PARA NUTRIR PESSOAS (NURTURING PLANTS TO NOURISH PEOPLE PROJECT)

A project that works in the management and fertilization of soils to increase food production in the West of Pará. Biofertilizers produced from organic waste are used to boost the production of small farmers within a radius of 40 km from the central area of Santarém.

Nurturing Plants to Nourish
People Project (Santarém/PA)

We are very happy with the contemplation of the product analysis laboratory, as it will guarantee a very big advance for our work, especially in organic production. We will be sure of the result of the products we are working on, with the analysis of the content of each one of them.”

People Project beneficiary

Volunteering:

strengthening ties with communities through sustainable development

Nutrindo o Presente e Alimentando o Futuro

(Nurturing the Present and Feeding the Future) is our corporate volunteer program, which brings together the actions carried out by Cargill employees directly in the communities where they live or work across the country, bringing inclusion, equity, and innovation.

In 2022, the program underwent a review, and its main objective was defined as to promote the culture of volunteering at Cargill and to encourage citizen practices that contribute to the prosperity of the communities where the company operates. Our strategy seeks to have the program connected to people development and Cargill's business.

Currently, there are more than 1,400 volunteers, distributed in 101 committees, benefiting about 40,000 people per year. Our program seeks to go beyond solving specific problems. We want to act in such a way that the community itself can, subsequently, continue with autonomy for local sustainable development.

In addition to the Foundation's projects and those of partners, our volunteers work in actions such as supporting residents of cities impacted by natural disasters, such as the rains in Recife and Ilhéus in 2022, and on the North Coast of São Paulo in 2023.

FRONTS OF ACTION

There are three work fronts of the program, which are directly connected to our programmatic axes and aligned with the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) of the United Nations (UN):

The experience of our corporate volunteering has proven to be, over the years, a two-way street. It's not just communities that benefit. Cargill employees are unanimous in stating that volunteering brings professional and personal growth.

In addition to meeting new people and different realities, volunteering enriches teamwork, develops creativity and emotional intelligence, and enables a sense of belonging – strengthening and strengthening the bonds between the company and communities.

Articulated Periphery Project
(São Paulo/SP)

PROGRAMA DE MENTORIA ARRASTART (ARRASTART MENTORING PROGRAM)

Together with the Articulated Periphery, our volunteers work in this Program, advising entrepreneurs who, after launching themselves in the market, need continued support to identify weaknesses and overcome challenges. The mentorship lasts 6 months, and this period can be renewed if new demands arise.

Articulated Periphery Project
(São Paulo/SP)

The program developed with Cargill Foundation volunteers is in its third cycle, strengthening the sustainability of 15 peripheral businesses. It is an action that impacts the supply of better and accessible food to the consuming public, improves the income of peripheral families, and strengthens the local economy and the business ecosystem, in addition to promoting innovation. Mentor employees, in turn, expand their skills and collaborative empathy, bringing the culture of social and environmental impact within Cargill to an increasingly higher level.”

Henrique Heder, Project and Partnership Advisor at Projeto Arrastão

I’ve been participating in the mentoring program for five months with Cargill volunteer Elisangela. She has helped me a lot in the organization of financial controls and guided me in the search for financing to expand my business, Chocolight. The project helps us understand what a business is, how to create an innovative model, how to make costs and prices, marketing strategies, and how to formalize the company. Both my colleagues and I can walk with more safety and knowledge on this journey. Many businesses were born with the support of Arrastão and today walk on their legs.”

Josiane Macedo Dias, Articulated Periphery Project beneficiary

FOOD BANK PROGRAM OF THE GOIÁS VOLUNTEER ORGANIZATION (ORGANIZAÇÃO DAS VOLUNTÁRIAS DE GOIÁS, OVG)

With about 12.7 thousand beneficiaries, the project operates within the Food Bank of Goiânia, operating at Ceasa-Goiás. With quality and food safety, food from dehydrated fruits and vegetables is produced and later distributed to registered institutions. Training is also carried out in the community and the fight against food waste.

Food Bank
Program of the Goiás Volunteer Organization

The partnership increased more pillars of action in the program's sustainability cycle and the reduction of waste. With this, we have expanded the capacity to receive donations and to produce dehydrated food with increased nutritional density and shelf life, with hygienic, sanitary, and sensory quality, so that it can be distributed to more families and at points farther away from the Food Bank. The volunteers were able to participate in the cycle of sustainability and the fight against waste and realized that food is destined for vulnerable people who are at levels of food and nutritional insecurity. Such action, in practice, corresponds to the fight against hunger.”

Lainon Moreira de Medeiros, Coord. of Food Bank Operations at the Goiás Volunteer Organization

I have lived at the at the Cargill Foundation for years and have had the privilege of following its growth and modernization – not only in terms of values but also in terms of identity. It has been an honorable and joyful journey, especially for bringing together people with a higher purpose. It is the volunteers who dedicate their most precious item in life, time, to build a better society. The Foundation celebrates 50 years, but the volunteers celebrate life. And both count on the certainty that they have contributed to a better future for all who live in this country, often in remote areas, others of deep need, but which will always be our Brazil.”

Ricardo Nascimbeni, General Manager of Supply Chain at Cargill for South America and member of the Board of Trustees of the Cargill Foundation

Food Bank Program of the Goiás
Volunteer Organization (Goiânia/GO)

I believe that employees feel like agents of improvement when they contribute positively to the communities. The perception of being useful to others, collaborating with their nutrition and helping to improve the lives of those who need it most brings a unique sense of accomplishment, which the Foundation's volunteer work provides."

Gustavo Brito, Cargill's Legal Manager and and Cargill Foundation Attorney

I believe that volunteering helps make the world a better place to live, and since we don't do anything alone, it is this force of volunteering that moves us and helps us create a fairer society for all. Volunteering brings me personal satisfaction, I feel fulfilled! I meet people and always learn new things."

Janaina Mokdeci, Global Finance Program Manager at Cargill and member of the Fiscal Council
of the Cargill Foundation

Food Bank Program
of the Goiás Volunteer Organization (Goiânia/GO)

What motivated me to participate in volunteering was the opportunity to contribute to the development of communities and to share knowledge with young university students. Seeing the positive impact of the actions provided by the projects, through testimonies from the community and students, has always been something remarkable.”

Roberto Fujieda, Laboratory Manager, volunteer of the Campinas/SP committee

Volunteering is a way of trying to bring some of the knowledge we have acquired at the of the Cargill Foundation to others, in a concrete and light way. In about 6 years of volunteering, it is very gratifying to bring love to others and to see people’s happiness in receiving help, which for them, at that time, was undoubtedly of immense magnitude.”

Hermano Salvador de Souza Ramo, Jr.
Laboratory Analyst, volunteer of the Ilhéus/BA committee

Volunteering allows us to be closer to our people, as well as to local communities. Know the needs and develop actions and projects that are linked to the company's policies and objectives. Volunteer coordination motivated me, as it enables the development of skills such as planning, organization, discipline, and teamwork, allowing me to learn and put into practice new learning.”

Cleibe Vieira, Nursing Technician, coordinator of the Itumbiara/GO committee

“Being a volunteer brings us a great sense of reality and a different worldview. It's as if you transform every action into love, and that love reverberates to others, creating an echo of solidarity in the world. Empathy for others, being side by side with the community, understanding the pains, the needs, donating a little piece of us and receiving in return a huge warmth to the heart.”

Rozeneide Percio, Continuous Improvement Analyst, coordinator of the Chapecó/SC committee

Vision of the future

Recently, we went through a repositioning process. We rethought, reviewed, and revitalized our strategic planning and value propositions.

In a long-term vision, we increasingly want to promote diversity, equity, and inclusion. We will also continue to work attuned to the constantly changing demands of the territories where we operate.

We will maintain our characteristic of acting in tune with the transformations of society, always seeking the self-sustainability of our actions. In this way, we will contribute to the empowerment and autonomy of communities, so that they can be protagonists of their development.

We imagine our future without losing sight of the values that have guided us from the beginning: putting people first and doing the right thing. By supporting stories and cultivating bonds, we contribute to the positive transformation of communities.
